Into Orbit

Navy Fires 1st 'Space Telescope'

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The United States fired into orbit Thursday the world's first astronomical satellite—a "space telescope" designed to unlock mysteries of cosmic radiation.

The satellite is the 39th put in orbit by U.S. scientists since Explorer I hurtled aloft 39 months ago.

A four-stage Juno II rocket, performing with drill-like precision, blasted the 35-pound telescope into an orbit ranging from about 30 to 70 miles above the earth. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration named the high-flying observatory Explorer XI.

About 250 newsmen, the greatest number since the early American space efforts, witnessed Thursday's launching. Most are here to cover the attempt to send a human astronaut on a 115-mile high suborbital space ride, expected Tuesday.

The mission of the 7½-foot telescope was to peer into millions of miles of space in a search for gamma rays—high-energy particles which stream out from cosmic sources such as the Milky Way and other star-cluster galaxies.

Scientists believe these rays may be the keys to information about the elements which make up the universe.

Drs. William Kraushaar and George Clark of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, which developed the satellite, emphasized the telescope would not "lay bare the secrets of the universe, but is the beginning of a long-range program designed to do so."

This is the first time since Explorer I that the United States has reached the one-month satellite average. The Soviet Union has sent into orbit 14 satellites, including the historic manned space flight of Yuri Gagarin on April 12.

Explorer XI is shaped much like a telescope but does not operate like the familiar telescopes through which man looks at the stars. The front of the satellite is filled with instruments geared to scan out gamma rays from other space radiation such as protons and electrons. This data is relayed to earth to be recorded in photographs of wavy lines on an oscilloscope.

The whole package tumbles end over end 10 times a minute to allow the telescope to scan the entire sky around it. Officials, who reported clear signals were being received, said the device will enable man for the first time to make astronomical studies above the distorting influence of the earth's atmosphere.

Specific assignment of the telescope was to count gamma rays and determine where they come from. Because gamma rays are not deflected or trapped by magnetic fields, as are electrically charged protons, their source in space can be easily determined.

Regulations Asked To Nip Corruption

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy asked Congress Thursday to join him in laying down clear guidelines against corruption in government. He called for regulations to "punish venality and double-dealing, and set a general ethical tone for the conduct of public business."

In a special message to the Senate and House, Kennedy said venal conduct by public officials in this country has been comparatively rare.

"Nevertheless, in the past two decades, incidents have occurred to remind us that the laws and regulations governing ethics in government are not adequate to the changed role of the federal government, or to the changing conditions of our society," he added.

Kennedy made no specific allusion to any of the investigations involving influence peddling and other scandals which have enlivened congressional hearings during the period he mentioned.

The President noted that conflict of interest laws date back 100 years or more. He said recent studies have recommended that "our outmoded and hodge-podge collection of statutes and regulations be amended, revised and strengthened to take account of new problems."

His Program

Kennedy laid down this program:

1. Congress should pass a proposed Executive Employees Standard Act, updating the present conflict of interest laws.

2. Congress should require each independent agency to set up a code of behavior within 120 days dealing with influence peddling, which Kennedy said has provided "some of the most spectacular examples of official misconduct."

3. Kennedy said he is instructing each Cabinet member and agency head in the executive branch to "issue regulations designed to maintain high moral and ethical standards within his own department."

4. The President announced he is creating a new officer to coordinate the various rules on ethical conduct.

In addition, Kennedy said he is taking these actions by executive order: 1. Gifts to government personnel are prohibited whenever it appears they are designed to influence official conduct.

2. Government employees are prohibited from using official information for private gain, such as for speculating in the stock market.

3. No government employee may use his position to engage in "the subtler forms of extortion" by seeking favors from someone whose interests may be affected by actions of the employee or his agency.

4. No government employee should engage in outside employment which is incompatible with his government work.

5. Orders will be issued regulating in detail the conduct of presidential appointees. "These high-level officials owe a special responsibility to the government and to the employees of their departments to set a high standard of ethical and moral behavior," Kennedy said.

6. Governmentwide standards will be applied to the retention of property or stocks by appointees in the executive branch.

Laos Government Awaits Answer To Cease-Fire

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—The Laotian government waited tensely Friday for an answer to its proposal for a cease-fire at noon. It seemed doubtful that out-maneuvered government troops could hold off pro-Communist forces much longer.

There was no indication that the Pathet Lao would call off the shooting at noon, as the government requested. Already claiming victory, the Pathet Lao again declared willingness to stop fighting but set no date.

(Expressions of concern about the delay in putting the cease-fire into effect and charges of bad faith came from London, Moscow and Washington.)

(President Kennedy in Washington gave an emergency briefing on Laos to congressional leaders Thursday amid strong indications that he warned that Soviet foot-dragging on the cease-fire was pushing the United States toward armed intervention to save the pro-Western government.

(Acting Secretary of State Chester Bowles voiced concern over the cease-fire delay to Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov in Washington Wednesday night.)

(The British Foreign Office closed Thursday night it had called in Soviet Ambassador Alexander Solodovnikov Wednesday and expressed similar concern.)

Charges Deterioration

(On the other hand a Moscow radio commentator, Yuri Soltan, charged the situation had deteriorated Thursday because the United States was encouraging the pro-Western government to continue fighting. "The United States is openly encouraging the putschists," he claimed. "The first transport planes already have brought to Vientiane large quantities of the most modern weapons and ammunition.")

(An augmented airlift of military supplies to the Vientiane government was announced by the United States this week in view of continued Communist offensives.)

Westerners expressed grave concern because, despite increased U.S. aid, the government's position and troop morale have worsened in the face of successful rebel attacks launched during attempts to arrange the cease-fire.

"The Communists can break through and take any place they want — if they want to make enough of an effort," one source said.

Most informants doubted the rebel Pathet Lao command would risk precipitating intervention by neighboring Thailand or U.S. forces with attacks on this administrative capital or other major eastern centers.

But one source termed the situation serious and commented: "I would say we are closer to war now than ever before unless we get a quick cease-fire. It's either that or run the risk of complete collapse."

Reliable informants said rebels captured Muong Sai, 55 miles north of the royal capital of Luang Prabang, with a heavy attack Wednesday. Muong Sai, a trading center, was the site of the late Dr. Tom Dooley's first jungle hospital.

The Muong Sai attack was one of five offensives the government reported opened by the rebels this week. No major fighting has been reported since the town fell, reliable sources said.

Royal troops have been fighting only defensive actions, the government said, and are ready to lay down their arms at any time.

The formal call for a cease-fire was broadcast by the government radio and transmitted to the British Embassy for relay to rebel commanders by Soviet Union.

Solons Briefed On Laos

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy gave congressional leaders an emergency briefing Thursday on the explosive situation in Laos.

There was no official comment after the White House session. But there were strong indications the President warned that Soviet foot-dragging on a cease-fire agreement is pushing the United States toward armed intervention to save the pro-Western government.

Informants said Kennedy, pending further word on a cease-fire, was withholding a decision on whether to step up U.S. military involvement in Laos.

Some advisers feared a collapse of the royal Lao government's defenses against Communist-led rebels if more help is not rushed in.

The State Department announced that Acting Secretary of State Chester Bowles Wednesday night summoned Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov to a 25-minute session at which Bowles voiced concern over Communist delaying tactics on a cease-fire already agreed to but still ineffective.

The legislative leaders avoided reporters immediately after the White House meeting but those approached later at the Capitol were close-mouthed and serious.

Kennedy met with congressional leaders of both parties amid reports of new offensives by the Communist-supported rebels and what were described as "obstructionist" Red tactics to avoid a halt to the shooting, as proposed in the cease-fire plan put forth by Britain and the Soviet Union last Friday.

Kennedy's meeting with the congressional leaders lasted about an hour and a half and came soon after a session of the National Security Council — second meeting of that top strategy group within a week.

Attending the noon conference were Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, House Speaker Sam Rayburn, D-Tex., Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, Chairman J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and Chairman Thomas E. Morgan, D-Pa., of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Special focus was kept on what would happen by noon Friday. The Lao government, which promptly accepted the cease-fire call, set that hour for the halt in shooting to become effective.

State Department press officer Lincoln White said, the principal Communist response has been to step up the rebel assaults and raise unacceptable conditions to a cease-fire.

The cease-fire is supposed to be verified by a three-nation control commission composed of India, Canada and Poland, to be followed by a 14-nation peace conference starting in Geneva May 12.

'Crazy Or Lying' GE Aide Denies Fix Meetings

WASHINGTON (AP)—Arthur F. Vinson, vice president of General Electric, has denied testimony that he had ordered illegal meetings to fix prices.

"Somebody is crazy or somebody is lying," said Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich.

And Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., chairman of the Senate Antitrust and Monopoly subcommittee, said a transcript of the conflicting testimony of Vinson and four other witnesses would be sent to the Justice Department.

There, Kefauver said, it would be "examined for the possibility of perjury."

In previous hearings, four witnesses, all fired by GE for taking part in price fixing meetings, testified that Vinson, at a luncheon in Philadelphia in 1958, had directed that GE representatives meet with competitors to fix prices.

"No Such Luncheon"

But Vinson told the subcommittee Thursday: "There was no such luncheon as has been described."

"I deeply regret I didn't know what was going on," he testified. "But I can assure that I did not."

The four witnesses who implicated Vinson were asked to resign by General Electric after pleading guilty to federal charges of price fixing. The four, all division or department general managers, were George F. Burns, Clarence E. Burke, Frank E. Stehlik, and H. Frank Hentschel.

In the case involving them, a U.S. District court judge in Philadelphia fined 29 electrical equipment manufacturers and 45 company officials nearly $2 million and sentenced seven of the officials to 30-day jail terms.

Vinson originally was indicted in the case, but the Justice Department later dropped charges against him.

During Thursday's testimony, Pete Chambers, Republican counsel of the subcommittee, reminded Vinson that he was under oath and asked if he still denied he took part in the Philadelphia luncheon.

"I'm under oath — I know I am — and I make that statement," Vinson replied.

In their testimony, the four other witnesses had been unable to pin down any exact date for the Philadelphia luncheon. But they said it took place sometime between July and September 1958.

Kefauver said Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy had informed him that the four had taken a lie detector test and passed it.

Vinson, who had declined to take the test, said "I have great confidence in the FBI, but do not have it in the polygraph (lie detector) test."

Housing Bill Breezes Through

WASHINGTON (AP)—An administration housing bill authorizing $4.79 billion in federal housing loans and grants over the next several years breezed through the Senate Housing subcommittee Thursday.

The subcommittee cleared the measure, one of the key ones in President Kennedy's domestic program, without a dissenting vote. Subcommittee Chairman John Sparkman, D-Ala., said he hopes the Banking Committee will approve it by the middle of next week and added he foresees little opposition to Senate passage.

Asks Editors To Help Meet Challenge

NEW YORK (AP)—President Kennedy said Thursday night no formally declared war ever posed a greater threat to U.S. security than the rampant threat of communism around the world.

Calling this a deadly challenge, Kennedy urged the nation's newspapers to re-examine their obligations in the light of the global danger and "to heed the duty of self-restraint" in presenting news.

Kennedy spoke of two requirements "of direct concern both to the press and the President" in these critical times.

"I refer, first, to the need for far greater public information; and, second, to the need for far greater official secrecy," the President said.

Three Requirements

He added these requirements seem almost contradictory in tone, but "must be reconciled and fulfilled if we are to meet this national peril."

The chief executive said he is not suggesting "any new forms of censorship or new types of security classification."

But, he said, he is asking every newspaper to ask, with respect to every story, not alone whether it is news but also, "Is it in the national interest?"

Kennedy called for more self-discipline on the part of the press at a time when he said there is no war and none ever may be declared in the traditional way, but "our way of life is under attack."

"The danger has never been more imminent. It requires a change in outlook, a change in tactics, a change in missions—by the government, by the people, by every businessman, union leader and newspaper," Kennedy said.

Kennedy's remarks were prepared for a dinner of the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

The chief executive said there is a question whether restraints of national security need to be observed more strictly if the country is to oppose the cold war tactics of the Communists "as well as outright invasion."

Kennedy said this nation's foes have boasted that they acquired through newspapers information which they otherwise would have had to obtain by theft or through spying.

In stern language, the President lectured newspapers for having recognized what he termed "only the tests of journalism and not the tests of national security," in the absence of open warfare, in their handling of some of the news.

He named no newspapers.

French Court Set Up To Try General

PARIS (AP)—France has set up a nine-man court to try the rebel ex-Gen. Maurice Challe for his life and is seeking throughout France to run down supporters of the broken Algiers generals' uprising. Hundreds of arrests have been made in France itself.

A parallel search is going on across the Mediterranean in Algeria for Challe's three general-rank colleagues of the anti-De Gaulle revolt and other leaders for trial presumably in the same court.

All could be put to death upon conviction before firing squads or on the guillotine.

The rebellion itself—a shadowy thing in both France and Algeria from the outset last Saturday until the end early Wednesday—died on a diminishing but re-echoing cry of "Algeria is French!"

The cry sounded to the end from a Foreign Legion regiment as it was being disbanded outside Algiers as punishment for joining the rebellion.

The legionnaires—many of them fugitives from their own distant and alien pasts—were at the breakup and were cheered by settlers who want the future sealed by force against Algerian rule as envisioned by President Charles de Gaulle.

Details of the trial setup for Challe, the only general of the rebellion who has given himself up, were published Thursday in the Official Government Journal. The tribunal will have three high court judges and a counselor of state on the civilian side and five generals.

10 More Players Involved In Fix Of 29 Court Games, Hogan Says

NEW YORK (AP)—The spreading basketball scandal Thursday dragged in 10 more players from six colleges as a fantastic attempt to fix 29 games, mainly in the East and South, was disclosed by District Atty. Frank S. Hogan.

Many of the fix attempts covering the past two seasons were successful, Hogan said.

Aaron Wagman, 29, a convicted football fixer from New York, was indicted on 37 counts of corruption and one charge of conspiracy by the New York County grand jury.

Hogan said the investigation, which broke open March 27 with the arrest of Wagman and Joseph Hacken of New York, is continuing.

Rivals '51 Scandal

The present probe threatens to rival the 1951 scandals which involved 33 players from seven colleges, in a widespread scheme to rig points of games and beat the bookmakers. Some of the players went to jail.

Named in the indictment Thursday were three players from St.

Joseph's College of Philadelphia, two from the University of Connecticut, two from the University of Tennessee, and one each from La Salle College of Philadelphia, Mississippi State and University of North Carolina.

In addition William Minnerly, the co-captain of the University of Connecticut football team from White Plains, N.Y.; two former Alabama basketball players, Jerry Vogel and Daniel Quindazzi of Yonkers, N.Y.; and Joseph Green, a New York and close associate of Wagman's, were named in the indictment as co-conspirators but not defendants. All four allegedly contacted basketball players, said Hogan.

St. Joe's Egan

Hogan said the players mentioned in the indictment allegedly accepted or agreed to accept sums ranging from $750 to $1,500 each for shaving points.

He named them as: John Egan, Bethlehem, Pa.; St. Joseph's captain, and teammates Frank Majewski, Jersey City, N.J., and Vincent Kempton, New York.

Peter Kelly, Orlando, Fla., University of Connecticut captain, and teammate Glenn Cross, Williamamantic, Conn.

Richard Fisher, Memphis, Tenn., and Ed Test both University of Tennessee; Edward Bowler, Bayonne, N.J.; La Salle; Jerry Graves, Jackson, Tenn., captain of Mississippi State; and Lou Brown, Jersey City, N.J., North Carolina.

Hogan said Brown allegedly contacted players at other schools for Wagman.

At the same time Hogan singled out for praise Lowrey Kirk, a senior from Memphis State who rejected an offer of $1,000 to shave points on one of his team's games, Kirk, of Hornsby, Tenn., instead reported the offer to his coach, said Hogan.

All the players mentioned in the indictment Thursday, except Brown, were granted immunity from prosecution from their testimony before the grand jury, Hogan said.

Hogan said Minnerly was granted immunity from prosecution. Vogel, Quindazzi and Green were not. Green's whereabouts are unknown, said Hogan.

Six Expelled

University of Connecticut and St. Joseph's College officials announced immediately the expulsion of three athletes from each school involved in the investigation.

Egan, star of the St. Joseph's team, finished a surprise third in the NCAA championship tournament, was among those expelled.

In the first break of the scandal last month, Hacken was arrested on a charge of bribing two Seton Hall players, Art Hicks of Chicago and Henry Gunter of New York. They were paid $1,000 each to shave points in a game against Dayton at Madison Square Garden, Feb. 9. Wagman was accused of paying a Connecticut player $1,500 to juggle points in the game with Colgate at Hamilton, N.Y., March 1.

State Police Announce New Promotions And Transfers

HARRISBURG (AP)—Two state police captains were elevated to rank of major in a list of officer promotions and transfers announced Thursday by Commissioner Frank G. McCartney.

Capt. Ralph D. Gardner, director of the Bureau of Criminal Identification since 1956, was promoted to major and assigned to the Executive and Administrative Bureau at state police headquarters here.

Also promoted to major was Capt. Singleton Sheaffer, commander of Troop C, Hollidaysburg, who was transferred to Harrisburg as commander of state police District 2. It comprises the Harrisburg, Montoursville and Hollidaysburg troops.

Other commissioned officers' appointments, all effective May 4, were:

Lt. Jackson E. Sacriste, Bureau of Fire Protection, Harrisburg, promoted to captain to assume command of the bureau as state shot in the arm, interrupted my fascination to ask in an English that was as bad as my French, "Isn't it tres grande the bon cir-kees? Maybe you look for room et food, non?" I said, "oui."

As we were signing the registry her owner-husband came over and calculated the extent of his greeting by first asking, "Are you Russians?" We chorused, "non!"

Then a Songhol African, who served a chief cook and bottle-washer, and who even out-Lennyed Fritz, was directed to show us to our rooms. He motioned that we follow him out a side door and up a flight of stairs leading to the roof. "It's cooler up there," the manager said.

As we walked through the doorway someone said, "Do you want to join the circus?" I turned and said, "I'll have to let you know, I can't think well on an empty stomach." Then I hurried to my room, to hurry down again, as I certainly didn't want to miss Scene II. (To be continued.)

He looked more like a fraternity president at Spring Weekend than a circus juggler, but I must say he was very good with the empty Carlsberg bottles that he was using for Indian Clubs. He stopped for a minute and opened one of what I thought were empty bottles, took a slug and roared again with laughter.

He gave the impression of needing little briefing; that he had played this role many times before. And this impression was later confirmed. He had run away with the circus when he was 12, had learned to juggle, and had worked his way to being administrative manager, as well as performer.

It was later said that when business wasn't too good that he could even do a few magic tricks. But the cast seemed afraid that one day he might do a vanishing act.

Every circus must have a lion-tamer, even if there is only one many lion. This circus was no exception. My eyes immediately found the one billed as "Sabu le Magnifique."

He was sitting slouched, and half asleep, in one of the many tattered, faded lawn chairs that dominated the furnishings. His name was nearly as long as that of the lion he trained. I would have taken him as an Oriental with a sunn, but they said no, that was from Calcutta.

DeMille Cast Featured In E-Burg Man's Travels

(The following delayed dispatch was written by Jack Gelinas, formerly of East Stroudsburg, now a public relations executive for Mobil Oil Nigeria Ltd. He is stationed in Lagos, Nigeria.)

By JACK GELINAS
GAO, MALI REPUBLIC — FORMER FRENCH SUDAN — (enroute to Timbuctoo; fifth day, continued)—Maybe it was fatigue from the day's long drive, or the heat and an empty stomach that were playing tricks. Or, maybe it was a combination of all of these, plus other depressants I haven't yet thought about.

The relaxing music of Chopin was coming from a short-wave radio at the end of the high, bulky wooden bar. The scene was all too incredible. It was almost as though one could hear the late Cecil B. DeMille explain the parts to be portrayed by members of the cast before shooting the next scene. I was suddenly stimulated.

To the beautifully sultry looking girl behind the bar, whose eyes outshone even the luster of the raven hair which hung freely to the small of her back, I heard him say:

"You're a Spanish girl. Two months ago you married a trombone player from Leipzig, in Algiers. You and your husband have been here at the hotel for the past ten days after having crossed the Sahara."

"A month ago your husband left the small night-club combo he had been playing with when you met, and signed-up with the French International Circus. And here you are! Due to many breakdowns on the way some members of the small troupe didn't arrive until late this afternoon."

"You're enjoying these care-free days here, because anything is better than fighting the discomfort of the road, and also because these ten days are the longest period that you and Adolf have been 'settled' in one place since you got married two months ago. And what is more, today is your birthday."

"Adolf" was a nice sort of guy. When we entered he was standing away from the bar, toward the entrance to the dining room, in serious conversation with his German compatriot whom he addressed as Fritz. "Adolf" looked and seemed more American than German in his mannerisms and dress.

He was the hero of the plot, if you will... "Adolf, even before your first performance you already hate the circus. Ever since you joined-up you've been asking yourself, why? At the time, with all the French-Algerian ruckus going on, joining up with the circus seemed like the best idea. You have no taste for war and fighting."

"You saw enough of it during World War II. You were posted at a Nazi concentration camp, and during this time you learned two things—to speak American and to like Americans. You're devoted to your young bride and are happy that she's having a good time for a change."

Academy Award Prospect
And to an unshaven, unkempt character, whom I was sure could have given an Academy Award performance as Lenny, in "Of Mice and Men," simply by being himself, DeMille's voice seemed to be saying, "You

CD Alert Slated Today At 4 P.M.

PEDESTRIAN and vehicular traffic throughout the Pocono Mountains will come to a halt for 10 minutes starting at 4 p.m. today as part of the state-wide Civil Defense exercise Operation Alert 1961.

Commercial air and rail carriers will continue to operate during the period. CD officials have urged persons planning to start air and rail trips between 4 and 4:30 p.m. to make due allowance for the local traffic stoppage.

When public participation begins, pedestrians on sidewalks or otherwise out-of-doors must take cover in a nearby building or other suitable place.

Motorists are to pull to the side of the highway and stop, leaving at least one lane and all intersections open for use by emergency vehicles.

Exceptions

Exceptions are the Pennsylvania Turnpike, Skyway Expressway and Pen-Lincoln Parkway where traffic will continue to move unless directed to stop in the vicinity of exits.

Also at 4 p.m., all radio and television stations will go off the air for 30 minutes. Radio stations — including Stroudsburg's WVPO — which are members of the Conelrad network will switch to 640 or 1240 kilocycles and will broadcast CD information during the half-hour period.

Three sirens will be heard during the afternoon by the public. The first, at 3 p.m., will alert CD personnel and will not affect traffic.

The second, at 4 o'clock, is the take cover signal for pedestrians and motorists. At 4:10, a third siren will signal the end of public participation in the drill.

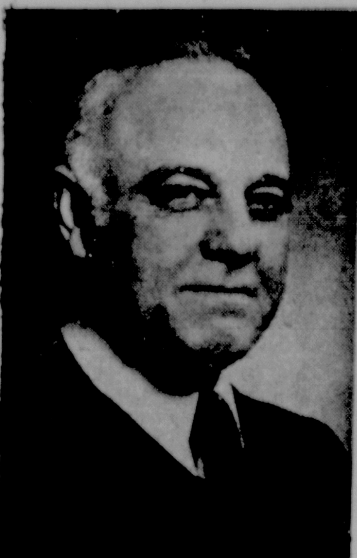

Monroe County CD personnel will also participate in a problem solution between 7 and 11 p.m. Communication activities will be featured during the exercises.

3 New York Road Projects Linked To Pocono Territory

OF THREE major construction projects planned for 1961-62 by the New York State Highway Department, three are linked to the Pocono region under the federal-interstate highway system.

One is the North-South Expressway—known in Pennsylvania as the Penn-Can Highway. It extends from Canada south to Binghamton, Scranton and the Poconos.

New York State plans to construct a section of the Expressway between Cortland and Tully; another section three miles long between Five-Mile Point and Binghamton, and to begin major design work for sections in Syracuse, Cortland and Binghamton.

Route 84

The second project is Interstate Route 84 (between Pennsylvania and Connecticut terminal points, cutting across Orange, Dutchess and Putnam Counties in New York). The construction work will cover the stretch between Route 9D and Route 9, east of the proposed Newburgh-Beacon Bridge, and a second section between Route 9W and the Thruway, west of the bridge.

Interstate 84 enters Pennsylvania at Matamoras and runs west to the Scranton By-Pass at Dunmore, where it links with the Penn-Can Highway.

The third major project on

New York's program is on the Albany-Canada Northway. Altogether, the state plans to spend one billion dollars in the current fiscal year. This consists of $645,000,000 in contracts now in force and $360,000,000 in new appropriations for future work. More than half of the total amount is furnished by the federal government.

No Injuries In Accident

NO ONE was injured in a two-car accident at Eighth and Main Sts., Stroudsburg, at 8:40 p.m. yesterday.

Stroudsburg police identified the drivers as Van Daniel Yeter, 18, East Stroudsburg, RD 2, and Joseph Battaglin, 17, of 290 Marguerite St., East Stroudsburg.

Investigators said both vehicles were proceeding west on Main St. behind the borough patrol car. When the patrol car stopped to permit a woman motorist in front of it to enter a parking place, Yeter's car struck the rear of Battaglin's vehicle.

Damage was reported extensive to the front end of the Yeter car and slight to the rear of Battaglin's vehicle.

New Times Sunday For E-L Trains

CHANGES in time schedules, effective with Daylight Saving Time Sunday, and combination of at least four former Erie and Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad passenger trains was announced yesterday by the Erie-Lackawanna Railroad.

Andrew G. Oldenquist, general passenger traffic manager, said the combinations will include such well-known trains as The Phoebe Snow and the Erie Limited, but the railroad intends to retain the identity of both trains because of their popularity in the general territory in which they operate. The Erie Limited will be known as the Erie-Lackawanna Limited.

The Phoebe Snow will operate between Hoboken and Buffalo and Erie-Lackawanna Limited between Hoboken and Chicago. They will leave Hoboken as a single train, No. 1, at 10:30 a.m., daily and will leave East Stroudsburg at 12:22 p.m. They will separate at Elmira with the Phoebe Snow following the Lackawanna line to Buffalo and the Limited using the former Erie main line to Chicago.

Present Train E-5, The Lake Cities and the L-7, The West-erner, will be combined and will leave Hoboken at 8 a.m. and East Stroudsburg at 9:54 p.m. They will be re-named Chicago and Buffalo Lake Cities, respectively. From Elmira they will split into two trains—one going to Buffalo and the other to Chicago.

Eastbound Schedule

On the eastbound schedule the Erie-Lackawanna Limited will leave Chicago at 6:10 p.m. and the Phoebe Snow will depart Buffalo at 9:25 a.m. They will combine at Elmira for Hoboken, leaving East Stroudsburg at 4:16 p.m.

Eastbound, the Lake Cities will leave Chicago at 11:20 a.m., with the New Yorker, renamed Buffalo Lake Cities, leaving Buffalo at 11:59 p.m. They will connect at Elmira and proceed to Hoboken, leaving East Stroudsburg at 6:48 a.m.

Police Probe Car Theft

EAST Stroudsburg police last night were investigating theft of a car from its parking place on Brown St. near Temple Israel.

Police said the vehicle is a 1961 white Pontiac sedan owned by Benjamin Silver, 1015 Lindberg Ave., East Stroudsburg. Its license number is S62-034.

Police said the car was taken between 7:15 and 9:30 p.m.

New Concept Urged To Bring Vacationers Into Keystone

ARTHUR P. Irving Jr., New York Times resort and travel manager, told representatives of the Pennsylvania Hotels Association yesterday, at their meeting at Split Rock Lodge, "An entirely new concept must be adopted to bring more vacationers to Pennsylvania."

He added, "Flying over this area are literally thousands of people who 10 years ago vacationed here in the Pocono Mountains, but today they are headed for Hawaii, Europe,

Mexico, the Southwest and many other now popular points."

Air Travel

"Today many of these places are only five hours distant by air, the average driving distance from the city to the Poconos only a decade ago," he said.

Irving urged that hotel and resort managers employ all news media with advertising to show that the Poconos offer better, greater and grander vacation spots than any other of the far-flung resorts.

Among his suggestions were advertising campaigns featuring an entire area rather than a single hotel or resort.

An entire newspaper page with an area resort advertisement has much more reader interest than a series of smaller individual advertisements.

Another speaker at the resort clinic was Harold A. Swenson, director of the vacation and travel bureau of the Pennsylvania Department of Commerce.

PM Realtors To Join In Observance

REALTORS of the Pocono Mountains, through their local chapter, are joining with the Pennsylvania Realtors Assn. and the National Association of Real Estate Boards in the observance of Realtor Week.

Gov. David Lawrence has issued a proclamation urging the citizens of Pennsylvania to join in saluting the programs and services offered by the state's realtors.

The Governor pointed out that realtors believe that "home ownership is one of the important bulwarks of democracy and have successfully promoted such a status for our citizens over the years with the result that more than 60 percent of our families now enjoy that beneficial state."

He added: "Realtors are dedicated to the wise use of real property and help to create the commercial and industrial growth upon which this state has prospered. They serve both buyers and sellers of real property and are pledged to conduct all business in conformity with their lofty code of ethics."

"Realtors have taken the lead in solving real estate problems arising from blight and slums through the activities of their national Build America Better program which gives expert advice to our communities on urban renewal."

Tax Gag Rule

A large company has just filed suit to recover $1.5 million in income taxes it claims the government should not have collected—but this is not primarily a tax case. It's a defense of free speech and the free press from a threat most people don't even know exists.

Normally, advertising is considered a part of business expense. Its cost is computed with other costs before the net profit of a company is computed. The U.S. takes 52 percent of the net profit.

In this case, and in several less dramatic cases, the government refused to consider the advertising costs as apart of the cost of doing business. Thus, the expenditure was taxed as if it had been profit instead of expense.

What is being double-taxed in this case is the concern's entire "institutional advertising" budget. Included were ads which hailed the Spirit of Christmas, urged gifts to the United Fund, presenting the company's side of a controversy with a union, and promoting the city in which the company's plant was located in the hope of attracting other employers to the area.

The cost of sponsoring radio news commentaries likewise were disallowed—and even the cost of small newspaper ads telling the time and station over which the commentaries could be heard.

The basis for the Internal Revenue Service's action is a rule that expenses for engaging in matters of public controversy are not deductible as business expense.

Competent legal authority has expressed the opinion that this rule if universally applied, would make the cost of writing and printing newspaper editorials unallowable as deductions, meaning that the newspaper would have to stand these costs exclusively from its 48 percent of the profit of the publication.

Rep. Hale Boggs, (D-La.) has introduced a bill which would take the threat to a free press and free expression of opinion on the air out of the IRS regulations. It should be passed without delay.

On Broadway —by Walter Winchell

THE REPORTERS

The Publishers and editors are holding their annual get-together in New York. It is well to remember, however, that there could not be editors or publishers—without reporters. They are the basic communicators—a capacity for discovery and interpretation who try to preserve moments of history. And many have traveled from hell to the front pages in an effort to give you the news.

Reporting encompasses imagination and compassion. To Ernie Pyle news was people—all people. Amidst horror and thunder, Ernie captured the extraordinary qualities of ordinary folks. And he conveyed their courage and glory with warm simplicity. A Washington paper once devoted its entire front-page to a Pyle story.

Reporting is the auxiliary of ingenuity. Will Irwin was among San Francisco's top reporters before migrating to the Big Burg. He was toiling for a New York daily when the quake staggered San Francisco. News from the scene of the disaster was fragmentary. Equipped with these sketchy reports, Irwin produced detailed stories of the catastrophe based on his own great knowledge of the city. The result was eight days of front page sensations. His yarns were lengthy and vivid. Incredibly, they were also accurate. They were later preserved in journalistic anthologies.

Reporting requires a passion for details. As Joseph Pulitzer pointed out: "Reporters should try to get a picture of everything, everything. Never think that anything is too small to be of interest. There is no such thing as an uninteresting story. There are only reporters who do not know how to present it in an interesting manner."

Reporting is the toughest way to get rich. A letter to a St. Louis editor once exploded a series of page-one firecrackers. It mentioned that a confessed killer had been fined $500 and freed. Reporter Frederick Hazlitt Brennan was assigned to the case. His reportorial diligence unearthed enough hanky-panky to result in the indictment of several lawyers, the prosecutor and judge in the case. Brennan's reward? He received an extra week's pay.

Reporting demands extraordinary spunk. The classic example is Carl Magee. For years he ignited the explosive facts about the Teapot Dome scandal. As a result, he was involved in a shooting, ridiculed, assaulted, sued for libel and railroaded to jail. He refused to surrender. In the end, Magee triumphed.

Reporting means scoop-hunting. And there are no rigid formulas for collecting page-ones. You can sweat over some yarns—and stumble over others. Some years ago the GOP convention party leaders held an all-night huddle in a Chicago hotel room in an effort to pick their standard-bearer. At three a.m. one politico emerged and noticed a reporter in the lobby. He informed him: "They will put over Harding." That was the initial beat scored by a young reporter named Raymond Clapper, who later became a leading Washington columnist.

Reporting includes a capacity for adventure. The outstanding example is Richard Harding Davis, of course. He became a journalistic legend deservedly. He not only covered wars but took an active part in them. He fought in Central American revolutions while covering the stories. He charged up San Juan Hill with Teddy Roosevelt. During his career as a war reporter, Richard Harding Davis offered distinguished journalistic service in five major wars.

Reporting enlists soldiers of the press. One of the fighting reporters was Kentucky's George Denison Prentice. He had a gift for satire and whip-smarted his foes. An admirer described his words as "stinging bolts of scorn." An editor named George Trotter was the target of such stinging bolts. The enraged victim eventually fired a shot at Prentice—and missed. Prentice retorted with a satirical story stressing the importance of accurate marksmanship.

Reporting is a fiercely competitive craft. Some incorrigible Washington correspondents have blackjacked competitors this way: When they are scooped on a yarn they phone the politico involved and relay a distorted version of what was published. Then they deny the original story. Years ago, one New York paper went so far as to hire sharpshooters to shoot down a rival paper's carrier-pigeons.

Reporting is the highest form of truth-telling. And a reporter's sole obligation is to the nation's general welfare. Of course, truth never marches in a parade. It struggles through a wilderness of red tape, reckless censorship, pressure groups and venality. As reporter Floyd Gibbons once observed: "Those who attempt to suppress the facts cannot hurt the truth—as much as the truth can hurt them."

Reporting inspires crusading zeal. Jacob Rius, one of journalism's crusading titans, once advised cub reporters: "Never become discouraged. When nothing seems to help, go and look at a stonecutter hammering away at his rock, perhaps as much as one hundred times without as much as a crack showing in it. Yet a the 101st blow it will split in two, and you know that it was not the last blow that did it, but all that had gone before. Reporters should be impartial, but never neutral."

Reporting is damn hard work. Clark Lee, one of the top World War II newsmen, described his job as "the hardest work, up to 18 hours a day." O. D. Gallagher of the London Daily Express traveled 100,000 miles in three years to cover stories. Reporters have sweated and frozen to get yarns in cities and battlefields—that subscribers read in a few minutes and forget just as fast. Edward R. Murrow's line: "A newspaper is like your youth. Never appreciated until it's gone."

Try and Stop Me

—by Bennet Cerf

She was purchasing her first life insurance policy and found a few of the questions thrown at her a bit baffling. "What's your maximum weight?" She answered easily enough with "About 150 pounds," but the next query, "What's your minimum weight?" stopped her. After some hesitation, however, she brightened. "I think," she said, "it was seven pounds, four ounces."

Seeks War Buildup

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington — President Kennedy is facing up to the explosive possibility that the U. S. may soon find it necessary to intervene with military force in Cuba.

In a private White House briefing, the President told congressional leaders that he is preparing to send to Congress a new request "for about a billion dollars to beef up this country's capability to fight a limited war in Cuba or anywhere else in the world if that should become necessary."

He reported that the new money will go for increases in firepower and manpower of the Army and Marine Corps. A selected number of units of both services will be put on emergency "alert" to be prepared for any eventuality.

Also, a new sea-air lift will be developed for 10,000 special troops that are to be trained to fight guerrilla warfare. The Army now has about 3,000 of these jungle fighters. The sea-air lift will include a seaplane troop capability which the Navy does not now possess.

The new funds will be in addition to the $42.9 billion already requested by the President in his defense budget for the fiscal year that starts July 1.

In his briefing of the legislators, the President stressed that the limited war preparations must be rushed because of "the seriousness of the Cuban situation" and "the growing possibility that the U. S. may be forced to intervene in more than one area at the same time."

"Khrushchev may force us to intervene militarily in Havana whether we want to or not," said the President. "There are no signs that he has ordered a halt in the flow of Communist arms. The Navy says that the traffic of Iron Curtain ships to Havana is increasing steadily. I don't plan to sit idly by while the Kremlin equips Castro with an airforce and navy second only to our own in this hemisphere."

He reported that the new money will go for increases in firepower and manpower of the Army and Marine Corps. A selected number of units of both services will be put on emergency "alert" to be prepared for any eventuality.

Also, a new sea-air lift will be developed for 10,000 special troops that are to be trained to fight guerrilla warfare. The Army now has about 3,000 of these jungle fighters. The sea-air lift will include a seaplane troop capability which the Navy does not now possess.

The new funds will be in addition to the $42.9 billion already requested by the President in his defense budget for the fiscal year that starts July 1.

In his briefing of the legislators, the President stressed that the limited war preparations must be rushed because of "the seriousness of the Cuban situation" and "the growing possibility that the U. S. may be forced to intervene in more than one area at the same time."

"Khrushchev may force us to intervene militarily in Havana whether we want to or not," said the President. "There are no signs that he has ordered a halt in the flow of Communist arms. The Navy says that the traffic of Iron Curtain ships to Havana is increasing steadily. I don't plan to sit idly by while the Kremlin equips Castro with an airforce and navy second only to our own in this hemisphere."

"I am sure that I speak for a majority of the persons here, when I tell you that Congress will support any action, including military intervention, if you believe that is necessary to protect the security of this country," said Senator Richard Russell (D., Ga.), chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee. "Congress will approve whatever funds you request."

The other Democratic leaders quickly followed Senator Russell in pledging their support.

Note: President Kennedy is telling his closest friends in Congress that no heads will roll immediately at the Central Intelligence Agency over the abortive anti-Castro landings in Cuba. Instead, he says CIA Director Allen Dulles and Richard Bissell, a deputy CIA director for planning, will quit in "two or three months" after everything quiets down. Bissell was slated to succeed the 68-year-old Dulles in September; however, the President is now hunting for a successor outside the Agency.

Foreign Counterfeiters — The war against counterfeiters of U.S. money is being extended overseas.

In a move to halt the flood of phony $10 and $20 bills in Europe, the Secret Service is working with French authorities to hunt down two counterfeit rings believed to be operating in Southern France.

Also, agents are investigating a report that Communist China is preparing to flood the free world with millions of dollars in counterfeit U. S. bills in the near future.

This latter report, still unsubstantiated by the Secret Service, reached the U.S. through diplomatic channels in Hong Kong.

It warns that Red agents plan to pass millions in counterfeit U.S. tens, twenties, and hundred dollar bills. The phony money is to be used by the Communists to purchase food and other sorely needed supplies for Communist China. Some of the money is to go for stepped up subversive efforts and anti-U.S. riots in Latin America.

Chief U. E. Baughman revealed the overseas activities of the Secret Service when he appeared before a House Appropriations Subcommittee to ask for more money for additional agents to combat the rising counterfeiting menace.

"We believe that there are two counterfeit plants operating in Southern France," Baughman said. "Most of our counterfeit money in Europe is coming from that area. We are now working with French authorities to hunt down those counterfeiters."

In discussing his probe of Red counterfeiters, Baughman reported: "There have been reports that the Red Chinese have counterfeited millions of dollars. We are investigating, but so far have not been able to substantiate this."

Note: During World War II, the Germans counterfeited millions of English pound notes. They were just starting to make an American dollar plate when Allied forces captured the area and seized the plant.

Washington Barometer — Walter Heller, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisors, has his own way of figuring the condition of the nation's economy. In testifying before the Joint House - Senate Economic Committee, Heller said there were some signs the recession is ending. Gambling at Las Vegas was running sixteen percent above last year's level, he said, and the indications are there will be a bigger parimutuel take than last year at Churchill Downs race track.

A couple of Washington investors with a shrewd eye for the future got the idea of buying a run-down place near Middleburg, Va., where President Kennedy has his country residence, and holding it for a killing. They talked to real estate men about the project but learned they were too late. Land around Middleburg which was worth $100 an acre last November is now going for $1,500 and up.

A drive by Wyoming's Democratic Senator Gale McGee for summer adjournment of Congress is making headway. Majority Leader Mike Mansfield has promised quick hearings before the Senate Rules Committee early in May.

Four State Compact Gains

A few days ago there was a very pessimistic opinion among a number of persons, including those in Congress and other areas of public life, as to the prospects for putting through a "four State compact" with Federal participation for the Delaware River Basin.

This compact, joining Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey and Delaware for a long-range series of improvements—dams, impounding basins, recreation areas and other features—are in the main designed to insure an adequate water supply for the Delaware Valley, along with much needed flood control, for many years ahead.

A new face has been put on this entire question, first by approval of the compact by a House Judiciary subcommittee and second, in spite of conclusions that it was "unconstitutional" voiced by Secretary of the Interior Udall, through confident observations of Representative Francis E. Walter, Easton, Pennsylvania Democrat, that President Kennedy would not veto the measure.

And Mr. Walter has considerably strengthened the Delaware Valley situation by noting Federal participation, much on the lines contemplated in the "Four State Compact," in the Colorado River compact, the Potomac River compact; the Ohio Valley Sanitary compact and the Wabash Valley compact.

Pennsylvania and allied interests in the four-State measure should move vigorously in both House and Senate to push it along. Scientific opinion generally emphasizes the certainty that in not many years the need for water in this area will become gravely serious unless it is prepared for as planned in the Four-State Compact bill.

George Sokolsky Says . . .

American Prestige

During the 1890 campaign, John Kennedy raised the issue of American prestige. Never before in American history had any candidate for the Presidency based his campaign on the decline of the prestige of his country. It was a sharp blow at the morale of the country.

If the prestige of the United States in 1960 were compared with 1890, the picture would have to be that in 1960 our prestige was higher, but if the standing of this country in the world were compared, say, when Theodore Roosevelt was President with the last years of the Eisenhower Administration, one would have to say that we stood higher in Teddy's day.

During the campaign, the debate sounded silly to those who held that prestige is unmeasurable. The Conservatives held that those who possess and use force have prestige and those who turn the other cheek, get slapped twice. Lyndon Johnson, running for Vice President, put the Democratic argument concisely when he said in Boston:

"Under no single Administration in American history has the position of our nation in the world declined so far and so fast as it has under the present (GOP) Administration . . ."

This is very tough language and President Eisenhower took to television and denounced the denouncers. Nixon thought that the prestige of the United States was at an all time high, which Governor Rockefeller believed was an exaggerated statement.

So, let us have a look at this word, prestige, as we reach May in 1961. After the Cuban debacle, our prestige, as a competent and prudent people, has hit a new low. When this country was defeated in Korea by Red China, many nations reviewed their positions and became neutral.

Such an opportunistic politician as Nehru of India organized a "positive neutralist" group, which having decided that the United States is impotent, adjusted its thinking to support Khrushchev.

So, this defeat in Cuba, if it remains a defeat, will require every nation in the American hemisphere to review its position.

It is absurd to suggest that

Trio Pleads Guilty To Theft

THREE Stroudsburg men were committed to Monroe County Jail about 2:20 a.m. yesterday on charges of larceny and disorderly conduct.

Stroudsburg police charged them with taking used clothing from a receptacle in front of the A. B. Wyckoff Dept. Store.

They were identified as Clinton Rouek, 23, of 38 Stoffer St.; William E. Garis, 33, of 500 Main St., and William G. Kenschaff, 27, of 44 Garden St.

All three pleaded guilty at a hearing before Peace Justice Floyd Kellogg, Stroudsburg. Kenschaff was released upon payment of $34 in fines and costs, while Rouek and Garis were sentenced to 30 days in jail in default of the same amount.

PSES To Put Out Labor Market Guide

THE STROUDSBURG office of the Pennsylvania State Employment Service is preparing a labor market job guide to be made available to the 292 high school seniors from Monroe and Pike County who are expected to enter the local labor market in June.

John P. Dougherty, manager of the local office, said the guide will provide helpful information and timely tips to seniors.

Of the approximately 534 seniors in the two counties, 242 are expected to continue their education.

Penn State Students To Seek Aid

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP)—A student delegation from Pennsylvania State University is scheduled to present some petitions to Gov. Lawrence in Harrisburg Friday seeking more liberal appropriations for their institution.

State Sen. Jo Hays, D-Centre, said Thursday he had made an appointment with the governor for 2 p.m. to receive the campus group representing the "Back-the-Budget Committee." The student group is headed by Dale Katherine Harris, 18-year-old daughter of Latrobe.

Hays said he had met with the students and was informed they had petitions bearing 3,000 signatures.

The campus movement began about two months ago after Gov. Lawrence had recommended 13-month appropriations of $18.3 million for the university, and President Eric A. Walker had countered that $23.1 million would be needed to maintain university standards.

Dr. Walker said that if the additional money was not forthcoming, an increase in tuition fees would be necessary.

Miss Harris said earlier: "Students feel deeply about the university's needs and want the governor and legislature to know that their parents, by and large, cannot afford another tuition boost."

Meanwhile, a separate campus movement was afoot to organize a motorcade to Harrisburg next week to bring the issue to the attention of the legislature and state government officials.

Robert J. Bernreuter, special assistant to the president for student affairs, commented that such exploitation of the issue by students "would do more harm than good."

Open House In Hospitals

HARRISBURG (AP)—A series of open houses at state hospitals is planned next week to illustrate what Pennsylvania is doing in the field of mental health.

The Public Welfare Department, in making the announcement Thursday, said the public visitations were planned to coincide with the observance of Mental Health Week, April 30 to May 6.

The campus movement began about two months ago after Gov. Lawrence had recommended 13-month appropriations of $18.3 million for the university, and President Eric A. Walker had countered that $23.1 million would be needed to maintain university standards.

Employment Declines In Area

EMPLOYMENT in the Pocono labor market area declined between Jan. 15 and the mid-March report, John P. Dougherty, manager of the local Pennsylvania State Employment Service office, reported yesterday.

Sixty area firms showed total employment of 8,073 at mid-March, a decrease of 146 from the January figure.

Manufacturing employment during the period showed an increase of 45, while losses in hotel and resort employment and various government agencies offset the gain.

Total area employment was off one percent from the comparable figure in 1960 and manufacturing employment was three percent lower. The chief loss in manufacturing employment was in machinery, both electrical and nonelectrical.

Seen Rising

Dougherty said manufacturing employment is expected to move up during the next two months as hiring gets under way in the area's newest firm—the Oiljak Manufacturing Co.

Despite the new firm's anticipated hiring, total manufacturing employment is expected to remain the same as last year for the report period ending June 15, due to losses in a machinery manufacturing plant.

Construction is expected to be at an all-time peak, including highways, and a shortage of skilled construction workers is expected to develop.

Shades Of Tibbet Recalled In Cassel's Concert Here

By DONALD B. CORSON
THE Pocono Community Concert Assn. presented Walter Cassel, baritone, Metropolitan Opera Assn. in a concert recital Thursday night in the college auditorium. He was accompanied by Archie Black on the piano.

Cassel's program was unusually varied, which gave ample evidence of his excellent vocal training, musicianship, and acting ability.

Beginning with two 18th century art songs by George Frederick Handel, the vocalist sang compositions representing music from the classical period to the music of our own day. It was obvious that Cassel felt at home in his renditions of the many types of compositions contained on the program.

Walter Cassel has already established himself as a singer of international reputation. His extensive vocal range, sensitive interpretations, outstandingly good articulation, and acting ability places him in the front line of baritone singers today.

As one listens, it is not difficult to recall shades of the famous Lawrence Tibbett. In fact, it was Tibbett who first encouraged Cassel to study voice and it is a compliment to the former artist that we still have a Tibbet type on the contemporary scene.

Outstanding among the Cassel presentations was Franz Schubert's "Die Almacht." In this famous work, the artist had the opportunity to display his extensive range and dynamic power in bringing to his audience the forceful composing of the great song writer Schubert.

The artist conveyed the strength and virile beauty of one of the composer's best "composed throughout" art songs.

"Invito alla Danza" (I invite You to Dance) and "Scherzo" by Respighi were excellent interpretations of impressionistic writing. The artist employed his superb command of delicate shading to bring these compositions to life.

Two compositions from the pens of Dell Arden and Stewart Wille provided a contemporary flavor to the song program. "Yet Will I Love Her" was a sensation performance in strophic style that reminded one of the always close relation between words and music so characteristic of the nineteenth century works of Franz Schubert.

The other work, "Ode to Us" (A Love Letter) was set to words penned in a letter by the artist's wife. As might be expected, Cassel brought out every nuance, every delicate and sentimental feature of this personal experience between the correspondents, including the "P.S."

Other numbers on the well-rounded program included Somervell's "Kingdom of the Sea," a strophic setting of Edgar Allan Poe's poem; two compositions from the pen of contemporary and popular Frank La Forge, "Retreat" and "Voodoo Spirits," the latter dedicated to Cassel.

"Vision Fugitive" from the opera "Herodinde" by Massenet, a 19th century opera composer, was excellently done with its highly moving and emotional Herod expressing his love for Salome. This was Cassel at his best, employing all the forces of dramatic and musical art so apparent in the

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

There was an odd reversal at the fashion show luncheon yesterday: it was the guests who looked as if they were going to model at a very plush fashion show and the models who looked as if they had just stepped by on their way to a picnic or the beach.

Of course I don't suppose Kay Mullins would wear one of those $3500 mink coats to a picnic, but you know what I mean. The fashion show emphasis was on Summer fun, and the wives of the hotel men were wearing their very handsomest Spring outfits including some terrific hats.

My, they are a handsome crew and it didn't much matter whether you were looking at the runway or the tables who were seeing some high style. Including Sally Ferree with another brand-new hair-do.

A brand-new waistline is what I'd get if I could do justice to some of the menus which have been drifting around on the invitations on my desk these past few days. Check which menu you prefer, they read: one-pound steak, chicken with spare-ribs, lobster tail.

Wow—but what you've got to realize is that these are parties planned by growing girls—well, anyway, members of the Junior Woman's Club or Stroud Community Club—and they need to build up their strength.

Usually I come across the invitations at the end of a long hard day at the bottom of the pile of notes and by that time I feel as if I could eat all three, right there and then. Comes the time to eat I'll probably be too excited to eat and then race off what I did eat trying to get it all in and my chores done, too. I am a problem to all the organizations, emerging from the other end of the Spring banquet season still looking like one of the least successful acrobats in a famine.

They feed me, you may be sure, but as my father always told me "Some horses are just poor keepers."

Vacation Fashions Star In Hotel Show Luncheon

There was something for everyone at the Vacationtime Fashion Show luncheon held at the Penn-Stroud Hotel in conjunction with the annual Hotel Show.

For the hotelmen and purveyors who took time off from the show to attend the luncheon there was men's wear although they seemed even more appreciative of the women's beach wear.

For their wives there was not only beach wear but cabana clothes, picture-pretty summer dresses, and furs—including two mink coats valued at $3500 each. And for everybody there were the two little charmers who modeled children's clothes. Sally Ferree served as commentator for the show, in which twelve local stores cooperated. Entering with a filmy nightgown in one hand and a pair of golf shoes in the other, Sally pointed out that everyone could buy everything they needed within the boundaries of the county. The show which followed seemed to prove her point. Emphasis was on casual clothes for summertime living in the Poconos with cabin pants and pull-overs, separates and coordinates dominating the show.

Drawing the most attention was a pair of striped harem-trousered culottes with a drawing that could be loosened to turn them into a skirt. Drawing the most approval were the afternoon dresses of fine tucks, ribbons and lace or dramatic color contrasts. And the most mouth-watering were the furs from full length coats to jackets and stoles.

Keeping pace with their elders were the children in everything from play clothes to Sunday-go-to-meeting best.

Men's wear were modeled by the recent stars of the College's "Tea House of the August Moon." Bill Moyer and Dan Trotter, who modeled for DeVivo, Quaresimo and Son and Herb's His 'N' Her Shop. Also modeling for Herb's was Rhoda Weltzman.

Other models included Ann George, who coordinated shoes and bags from George's Shoe Store with her own wardrobe; Kitty Stroupe, a former Miss Jantzen, who modeled for Wyckoff's; Kay Mullins who modeled the furs from Akoury; Emily Kranendonk for Smith's Fashion Apparel; Mildred Shaw for Jere's; and Cindy Price and Cindy Levy who modeled the children's clothes from Newberry's and Harold's Kid's Shop respectively.

Following the fashion show, Ann Mason, a representative of Lee Carpets presented ten room settings; coordinating carpets, walls, draperies and accents with particular emphasis on making hotel rooms hospitable and memorable.

May Bake Sale, August Fashions For St. Joan's

Pocono Summit—A bake sale and a fashion show have been scheduled by the Altar and Rosary Society of St. Joan of Arc Church.

The bake sale will be held at the church auditorium on Saturday, May 27, beginning at 10:30 a.m. It was decided at the meeting held at the church.

The fashion show will be held August 16 in the Terrace Ballroom of Pocono Manor Inn and will feature fashions from Zachers.

The society will meet May 28. Mosquitoes repeatedly saved ancient Rome, which stood above malarial swamps. Many more invaders were killed by mosquitoes than by Roman swords.

The Americas Clubwomen's Study Theme

The Monroe County Federation of Women's Clubs and several of the member clubs will be represented at the fifth annual conference of the Pennsylvania Federation to be held at University Park, July 19 to 21.

"The Key to the Future—the Americas" has been selected as the topic of the conference to be conducted by The Pennsylvania State University in cooperation with the federation.

Family Fare

By Bobby Westbrook

Hamilton PTA Studies Mental Ills

"Family Circus," a film showing the possible emotional disturbances an older child might develop when a new baby arrives in the family, was shown by Miss Marie Brown, supervising teacher at the Laboratory School, East Stroudsburg State College this week at the meeting of the Hamilton Elementary Parent-Teachers Assn.

In the discussion which followed, Miss Brown stressed the fact that the stigma which at one time was attached to any mental illness has largely disappeared and that organizations, such as the Monroe County Mental Health Assn., are available to help people who may have become overburdened through the tensions and pressures of competitive living.

Teachers in elementary schools are often in a position to detect emotional problems at an early stage before they develop into serious cases of mental illness, she said.

Miss Brown said that the local Mental Health Assn. is at present staffed by voluntary workers from the community. Since one out of every 250 persons in Pennsylvania is mentally ill, Miss Brown emphasized the importance of their work.

At the business meeting, Mrs. Janet Howell was elected president; Mrs. Shirley Wilson, vice president; Mrs. Frances Clark, treasurer and Mrs. Mildred Cyphers, secretary. They will be installed at the meeting on May 23.

Refreshments were served by the home room mothers of the third grade.

Dirigo Class

Dirigo Class of the United Church of Christ will hold its annual Mother's Day dinner on Monday night at the church. Serving time is 6 p.m.

Southern Wayne PTA Hears Reorganization Problems

Newfoundland — The advantages and disadvantages of school district reorganization, and a history of Southern Wayne Joint School District to date, were detailed by Leland Cramer, supervising principal, during the April meeting of the Parent Teachers Association held in the auditorium.

Mr. Cramer, representing the school board, noted that Greene and Dreher Townships created one of the first jointures in the State, and the first to cross county lines (Wayne and Pike). The jointure took advantage of the incentives offered by the State in the early days when efficiency of operation in larger districts was first recognized.

The Greene-Dreher Jointure was then enlarged to include Sterling Township, and the three have operated for mutual benefit for many years.

Then in 1956, the Wayne County Plan was prepared in accordance with directives issued by the State. Administrative Unit A was designated as including Lake, Salem, Greene, Dreher and Sterling Townships. South Canaan was later added to this unit.

In 1960, Salem Township initiated a move to form more than a "paper union," but the efforts of the six townships have reached a stalemate since Lake Township favors union as a more profitable setup for their area, and the other townships favor jointure as being more equitable.

In 1961, Greene, Dreher and Sterling Townships began to consider jointure with the Wallenpaupack Area Jointure which includes Blooming Grove, Hawley, Lackawaxen, Palmyra (Pike), Palmyra (Wayne), Paupack and White Mills. The Wallenpaupack board encouraged this jointure, but, since they are preparing a $1,809,920 building project for completion by 1963, set a May 1 deadline for a decision.

Advantages of the Wallenpaupack jointure were listed by Mr. Cramer as: (1) providing better, more complete and more

Smith Feels Bloom Should Resign Post

HARRISBURG (AP) — Retiring Auditor General Charles C. Smith paused in cleaning out his desk Thursday for a parting shot at Republican State Chairman George L. Bloom.

Republican Smith said Bloom should resign "if he is sincerely interested in the future of the party in Pennsylvania."

Bloom commented in reply: "The Republican Party would be better served if Charley would stop running around criticizing everyone and spend more time working for Republicans in his home city of Philadelphia."

Smith was a candidate in last November's election for the office of treasurer but was defeated by Democrat Grace M. Sloan of Clarion. Mrs. Sloan takes office Monday. Thomas Z. Minehart of Fort Washington who defeated Robert F. Kent of Meadville for auditor general in another Democratic victory, takes office next Tuesday.

Under the state constitution, the offices of auditor general and treasurer are limited to one term.

"What the Republican party needs," Smith said in an interview, "is leadership that can get people together instead of keeping them apart, and a leadership that is willing to try arbitration as a means of uniting the party for the next election and for future ones."

Dear Abby

Put It On The Line, Dearie

Dear Abby: We recently purchased a clothes dryer and now the young doll across the hall keeps trapping my husband in it, bringing her "things" in after she's used our dryer. Am I wrong in thinking it is too personal a chore for my husband to be sorting and folding her "unmentionables?" I still don't know how to operate the dryer, or I would do it.

SOMEBODY'S WIFE
Dear Wife: Inform the "doll" across the hall that if she wants to use your dryer, she should operate it herself and sort and fold her own "unmentionables." This is no job for your husband...

Dear Abby: Please don't laugh at me. I am 20 years old, a junior in college, and am considered a good-looking guy with a gift for making interesting conversation with girls on a variety of topics. The trouble, when it comes to say goodnight to a girl, I stutter, mumble and my shyness comes out.

I have gone with many good-looking girls who have come right out and asked me to kiss them goodnight. I still can't. I don't think there is anything evil about kissing a girl, but I can't bring myself to do it. Am I normal?

DEAD EARNEST
Dear Dead: People who wonder whether they are "normal," usually are. If you find yourself "stuttering and mumbling" and unable to kiss a girl, don't let it worry you. You haven't "wanted to" badly enough yet.

Dear Abby: I am in love with my best friend's husband. I live near them and spend a lot of time at their house. I don't know how it happened, but we fell in love and I couldn't help myself.

I really like his wife and she likes me. When I visit her in the afternoon, I leave before her husband comes home because I can't stand to see him kiss her hello.

No one but this man and myself knows how we feel about each other. He says he loves his wife, but he loves me too. Am I crazy for believing him? What can I do about this mixed up feeling? I am 28 and have never been married. He is 33.

MIXED UP
Dear Mixed Up: The only thing you can do about your "mixed up feeling" is to let it die from lack of nourishment. And stay away from his home.

Golf in the Poconos is custom-made. There's a course to fit your game, equipment and pocket book.

From the many pitch and putt courses in the area to the rugged challenge of the "monster" at Taminment-in-the-Poconos, there's a course for your swing.

Two of the better know courses in the Poconos are Pocono Manor and Fred Waring's Shawnee Inn.

Art Wall, Jr., a native of the Poconos, registers out of Pocono Manor on the Professional Golfer's Assn. of America tour. Wall, of Honesdale, was the 1959 PGA "Golfer of the Year."

Jack Cuttle, the dean of area professionals, is the home pro at Pocono Manor, an excellent teacher and master of the pitch and run shots.

Shawnee Inn underwent a change during the winter, with Jack Cummins, former Miami television sportscaster replacing Harry Obitz as the head pro. Obitz resigned to devote more time to his other golf operations.

One of Top Events

Shawnee is the home of the Waite Memorial Tournament, one of the top amateur events in the country and was the scene of the Jackie Gleason-Arnold Palmer television golf match last October.

Glen Brook Country Club also saw a change this year. Paul Patten former Cornell University football coach, stepped in for Sam Kinder. John Kupice will serve as the teaching pro at Glen Brook, which earned its early fame when Gene Tunney trained there for his heavy-weight title fight against Jack Dempsey.

Redeeming Mutual Shares

By William A. Doyle
Q. In 1956 and 1957 I made a series of investments in shares of Keystone Fund of Canada. I knew that this mutual fund does not pay dividends or capital gains distributions. But I felt that the shares would rise in value.

Over two weeks ago I asked my broker to sell these shares. Later I sent a direct request to the Keystone Co. As yet I have not heard from them. What should I do next?

A. Something is fouled up, somewhere. There are two basic ways to redeem mutual fund shares. You can instruct your broker to redeem them or you can redeem them directly through the sponsor company. You did both. So, you should have had some action in less than two weeks.

In either case, you would get the redemption price (the "bid" price) in effect at time your request for redemption is received by the sponsor company. The redemption price of Keystone Fund of Canada shares is the net asset value of each share. Some funds have a small redemption charge (one percent or so) which cuts the redemption price below net asset value. Keystone and most others do not have such a charge.

If you have the certificates representing your Keystone Fund of Canada shares, you will naturally have to turn them in before you receive your redemption price.

If you have never received your certificates (because you left them with the custodian bank, as many mutual fund shareholders do) you should have received your redemption check after making your request to either the broker or the sponsor.

Your redemption might possibly have been crossed up because you made the request both through your broker and directly to the sponsor company. But things should have been squared away by this time.

I suggest you write another letter to Keystone. Explain everything, just as it has happened. The sponsor company will straighten things out.

And don't be unhappy with this investment. Keystone Fund of Canada, like most of the Canadian-incorporated mutual funds whose shares are registered for sale in the U.S., didn't exactly set the world on fire in the past. But it has done very well recently.

Q. A few years ago I invested some money in Managed Funds, Inc. I am aware that there has been considerable liquidation of Managed Funds shares. Do you know if sales of the funds' shares are running ahead of liquidations at this time?

A. Managed Funds, Inc., is an organization of seven mutual funds. You don't mention which fund you bought into. Nevertheless, it is possible to answer your question — about the Managed Funds organization as a whole.

These funds have been hit hard by liquidations (redemption of shares by shareholders) since early 1959. At that time, the Securities and Exchange Commission lowered the boom on the old management and just about threw the old management out. The shareholders of the funds then voted for a new management group.

Combined total assets of the funds, which had been above $70 million dipped as low as $46 million last fall. They are now up around $58 million. The improvement during recent months can be traced to rising values of the securities in which the funds have invested.

Sales are picking up and redemptions are easing off. But the gap hasn't closed yet.
